

TRAINING PROGRAMMES FOR MENTAL HEALTH TRUSTS

Staff working in mental health settings face a number of challenges in providing comprehensive care for their patient's mental health as well as addressing complex physical needs. Covid-19 has required staff working in mental health trusts to adapt quickly to new challenges and ways of working, which has taken a toll on staff as well as the patients they care for. As organisations move from critical incident management into recovery planning, patient and workforce mental health have become forefront. Our diverse range of courses cover everything from general mental health to advanced specialist topics and are focused on enhancing the skills and confidence of staff working across trusts. Our courses will address Covid-19 where relevant.

Maudsley Learning has a full range of courses to meet these needs in your organisation. Most can be delivered to you flexibly and tailored to your requirements:

- Maudsley Masterclasses are available for up to 40 people and include a mixture of expert talks, small group teaching, and video case vignettes. These are available for full day socially-distanced classroom-based delivery and most will be livestreamed for remote access
- Masterclass Digital courses are fully-interactive 6-8 hour courses delivered online in bite-sized 2-hour live sessions
- Maudsley Simulation courses can be delivered in your local simulation suite socially distanced or via our innovative digital simulation platform.
